COVID-19 Communication

As the rapid spread of the Coronavirus (COVID-19) continues in the global community, we at BRP Family Law want to update you on the steps we have taken to ensure business continuity for our clients.

We have developed a Coronavirus protocol that will be set in motion in the unlikely event that some or all of our attorneys and staff are required to work remotely. The technology that we have put in place will ensure that our services will be uninterrupted, and your legal matters will not be impacted. Commencing immediately, all meetings which do not need to be in person are being scheduled by phone, Skype, GoToMeeting, Facetime, or whatever application is best for our clients. Again, in the unlikely event that we are required to work remotely, all attorneys will have electronic access to your files and your telephone calls will be rerouted to the appropriate attorney and/or staff member's mobile phone.

We are closely monitoring the World Health Organization, the CDC and state/ local authorities. Our highest priority at BRP Family Law is the well-being of our team, clients and community. We continue to implement measures to reduce the risk of workplace transmission of the virus to ensure the health and safety of our entire community.
